THE joke of this whole "just-as-good-as-the Burroughs" argument is that nobody believes it—neither the salesman who makes the claim because he wants a sale, nor the man who tries to hypnotize himself into believing it because he wants to pay a smaller price.

The fortunate part of it is the average buyer of adding machines is realizing that while he may be able to see little differences in mechanisms, that it is right there the reasons for short lived, trouble making maedition brine

For sixteen years and more we have been talking about the mechanical reasons why the Darroughs est. There can be no other reasons, becau e an adding machine is a piece of mechanism. A machine is a good or bad, a profitable or unprofitable investment, la proportion as it is a serviceable, durable piece of

If a piece of mechanism does not conform to known mechanical laws, it goes to pieces just as inevitably as a nean improperly constructed. We dien't invent the Burroughs principle.

Mechanical laws have a higher source than any man or set of men.

Some people may tell you that pulling a sled over the earth is as easy as pulling a wagon; it may look as easy, but you know it isn't. But you don't know that the sliding principle, the governor-less control, in an adding machine, is not safe-that it will not wear-but you do know that the price is cheaper,

We've been all through that, and we have the expecience of the hundreds of brilliant inventors, nervy capitalists and determined investors, who backed up the other style of machines, to guide us by their dis-

We haven't enough egotism in our organization to believe that we can alter the changeless eternal law but has decreed the mechanical principle on which the Burroughs was designed to be the only safe on for a piece of mechanism designed to do its work for a

The twenfy-two years we have spent going to school on the adding machine question have taught us the folly of the dangerously clever stunts that look good, "talk well." but don't last; have shown us what can and what can not be safely asked of any adding and listing machine. The benefit of this experience is a real tangible part of what you pay for in buying a Burroughs.

We build the Burroughs from bottom to top, in our own factory. It is not an assembled machine, depending upon good luck and much persuasion to go together as the designer thought it should,

We stand back of everything that goes into our product, from the rightness of the mechanical principle on which it is constructed to the accuracy and quality of the smallest screw in the most insignificant part.

We have no apologies to make for the character, adaptability, or behavior of our output; no excuses to make for present failures that "we have a better model coming through the factory."

The Burroughs has not changed its model in sixteen We believe anything that has received during all its life a continually increasing share of public ap proval, in spite of competition, is good to stick to for both seller and buyer.

The Burroughs is a safe machine, we adopt no feature because it is new, drop nothing because it is old, but we test and try each of hundreds of ideas in the crucible of every day business. Every new thing we ask you to accept is $9-100 fine, or it never reaches the public, and you'll never be asked to pay for our experi-

We place our millions of capital, our prestige of continuous success and our experience back of these principles and the 58 different Burroughs machines.

These are things which prospective buyers of adding machines will do well to pender carefully and why they should ask for a demonstration of a Burroughs in their own office, without expense or obligation to them.
